1. On parade: The door fronts of the Atelier kitchen concept by Aster Cucine feature a lightly textured finish, and are available in eight colours. Prices on request.

Utopia says: The secondary worktop is a key feature of this kitchen, giving an area for dining and connecting the kitchen to the living space.

2. On parade: The Darkwood glass-topped bar trolley from Dwell is finished in stained oak veneer, and features an enclosed cupboard for glasses, as well as a rack for keeping bottles upright. 69x76x40cm. £165.

Utopia says: This portable drinks cabinet makes it simple to serve guests in different areas of the home.

3. On parade: Sensio Lighting's SE9007HD 24V square surface lights are ideal for providing low-profile under-cabinet lighting. They're made from thermoplastic with a satin chrome finish. From £18.95 each.

Utopia says: These flicker-free LEDs run at just 1.25W while emitting the equivalent light output of a 20W halogen bulb, so they're very efficient and have a long life of around 60,000 hours.

4. On parade: Caple's Form 200 sink is made from highly durable stainless steel. 892x507x210mm. From £246.

Utopia says: The Form collection offers plenty of sink solutions, with two inset versions, and undermounted options including a choice of six single versions, or a 1½ or 2-bowl model.

5. On parade: Available from Amode, the Spectra dining table is large enough to seat a party of six. It is finished in white gloss lacquer, with a smooth black linoleum top. L200xW90xH75cm. Around £1,120.

Utopia says: We love the way this Italian table combines a contemporary look with the traditional touch of carved Baroque-style legs. Matching furniture is also available.

6. On parade: Mereway Kitchens' Italian-inspired Cucina Colore collection is now available in a number of hi-gloss woodgrain finishes, including sanded oak, applewood, tobacco walnut and the olivewood shown. From £10,000.

Utopia says: This is a great option for those who want the look of wood but with a modern, glossy feel.
